Utilities Subject Matter Expert Ken Thomson Joins Aquitas Solutions

Ken will support the company's expansion into utilities and specialize in business transformation architecture

May 5, 2021

Aqitas Solutions, a leading provider of Enterprise Asset Management (EAM) and IoT solutions that optimize asset intensive industries, announced today the addition of a Utilities Subject Matter Expert to its team. Ken Thomson, an accomplished EAM professional with over 20 years of experience in asset driven industries, will be joining Aquitas' consulting organization as a Director of Utilities Solutions to support its expansion into this market segment and specialize as a Business Transformation Architect of Maximo. Ken joins Aquitas after 8 years at ENMAX Corporation where he was instrumental in the successful deployment of Maximo and defined many of their longstanding work management and supply chain processes including their Line Inspection solution, CUE Enhancement and Integration with Powerplan, Mobility applications, and EHS implementation.

Prior to his role at ENMAX, Ken worked for IBM as a Business Transformation Architect where he worked directly with end users to address supply chain issues and advise asset management best practices. He is very active in the Maximo community – he holds the designation of Professional Logistician (P.Log) issued by the Logistics Institute, IBM Certified Solution Designer for Maximo 7.1, and IBM Certified Solution Architect for Watson IoT Maximo. He's a well-known speaker at conferences including MaximoWorld, CANMUG, and Maximo Utility Working Group (MUWG), and he served on the IBM O&G/HSE Industry Advisory Council as well as the board for MUWG, the premier user group for Maximo Utility market.

"Ken's Utility and Maximo background gives him a rare ability to both transform our customers' business and jump into the weeds as required," commented Jeff Brown, Partner at Aquitas. "This is why he is extremely valuable to our customers. He has an end-to-end understanding that is hard to find in today's ecosystem."

Aqitas is excited to welcome Ken to continue their expansion efforts into the utilities industries.
